35TH AND TAYLOR PRESENTED BY MIDCO 8:45pm - Great Western Bank Stage

Originating in the Midwest in 2011, 35th and Taylor offers an alternative rock sound with a heavy blues influence derived from the Black Keys, White Stripes, Grace Potter, and Joss Stone among others.

Lead singer Anna Taylor has no fear of the stage and spotlight having appeared on Season 6 of NBC's The Voice at the young age of 15. The band has also been awarded the "Spirit Award" by the Iowa Rock and Roll Music Association by unanimous vote for their contribution as the "future of rock and roll in Iowa."

Don't miss your opportunity to witness this untarnished, electrifying group in person, under the stars at Downtown Riverfest and make sure to stick around for the fireworks to close out the show!

ROCKIN' RED

5:00 & 6:15pm - Midco Tent

Rockin' Red is the stage name for experienced musician, Leslie Dalby. Leslie was the keyboardist and member of the children's entertainment group, Do Re Mi's Play from 2008-2016. In 2016, she began performing solo children's shows as Rockin' Red. Her primary instruments are piano and saxophone--which you can hear on her first studio album. With two young children of her own, she finds inspiration for writing her songs from everyday life. Her shows are packed with fun since she isn't afraid to be silly and goofy! Leslie calls Sioux Falls, South Dakota home but loves traveling for shows and meeting new friends.

THE FATTENIN' FROGS

6:30pm - Great Western Bank Stage

The Fattenin' Frogs was born out of love for the back roads music of America's past, playing rock & roll in its original spirit by cranking up the electricity on the music of the juke joints, hootenannies, medicine shows and tent revivals of yesteryear. This Minneapolis sextet puts their heart and soul into every song and we doubt you'll be able to hold back from singing, clapping and dancing along! Lead singer since 2012, Amanda White, is a born and raised South Dakotan, who grew up listening to old blues and country and had been singing for as long as she could remember. With a vintage style and a powerful and soulful voice, Amanda has brought a new element to the band that her fans have come to adore.

SPARSE

4:30pm - Great Western Bank Stage

Sparse is a collaborative album of singer/songwriter Jami Lynn and bassist Andrew Reinartz. Haunting ballads of the iconic Billie Holiday, a Gillian Welch tune re-imagined by Reinartz, as well as the scat-laden title track, "Sparse," co-written by Lynn and Reinartz take the listener to the very roots of vocal jazz while recoloring this musical landscape with modern influences of folk and a touch of rock.

Rounding out their sound is Dalton Coffey on dobro and JAS Quintet members Joel Shotwell on sax, Jim Speirs on trumpet, Daniel Heier on drums, and Jeffrey Paul on keys.
